Release of Claims & Liabilities for Donors

Gleaning for the World, Inc. is a non-profit 501(c) 3 organization that receives surplus products as tax-deductible donations. These products are then donated to mission/humanitarian organizations worldwide to relieve suffering from starvation, lack of medical care, lack of education, war and natural disasters. The products donated are not sold, bartered, traded or used for profit in any way by Gleaning For The World, Inc. or the receiving organization.

As a humanitarian organization, Gleaning for the World agrees to release your company, _____, of any claims of liability against the product donated except for gross negligence, which is defined as donated products that are knowingly defective and unsafe for human consumption or use. Gleaning for the World, Inc. accepts responsibility for sorting the donations according to dating and determining the donation's most effective use in Third World countries or the United States. Every mission/humanitarian organization receiving donations from Gleaning for the World, Inc. must sign a Release of Claims and Liability form and certify that the organization can accept the donation, and accept responsibility for transporting the donation to the affected countries. The mission/humanitarian organization also accepts responsibility for providing information to Gleaning For The World, Inc. regarding the effective use of donated product.
